WESTMINSTER CATECHISM

Question 27: Describe Christ's becoming a man?
Answer: Christ's humiliation (becoming a man) consisted in His being born, and that in a low condition, made under the law, undergoing the miseries of this life, the wrath of God, and the cursed death of the cross; in being buried, and continuing under the power of death for a time.

Scripture; Galatians 4:4; Hebrews 12:2

Romans 12:3 “For I say, through the grace given to me to everyone who is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but to think soberly, as God has dealt to each one a measure of faith.”

The Christian life should be a life of humility. Verse 3 introduces the general thought, “I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you.” This is for all of you who are being confronted with this message, every man and woman. Man is a generic term and includes both. He insists that each believer is not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think. A man should not aspire to be something that is not in the will of God for him, because God has made him what he is and has a particular place for him as a Christian. How often we find people who do have some real gift, but who are dissatisfied with the gift they have, a gift which may be lowly but worthy, not spectacular but useful; and so they are desiring to be something else other than what they are and what God has purposed.

There is a rule of measure. God has provided this for each man. You may question God's will in dealing with you in this way, but remember that His will is good, acceptable, and perfect. The measure of his dealing with you is according to your faith. God knows the capacity of our faith, because He has given us our faith.
