"The Prophet's Message"

There are four basic areas of truth that we find in prophetic writings.

1. Instruction of the great truths about God and man. The prophets devoted much time telling the people about God's character, purpose, and law. This allowed them to then diagnose the spiritual health of the nation as a whole, and of the individual in particular.

2. Warning and appeal to those living in sin. The prophets warned continuously about righteous judgment for sin, and exhorted the people to repent and turn to God.

3. Comfort and exhortation to those trusting and obeying God.

4. Prediction of events to come. Prophetic predictions were related either to the nation of Israel and its connection to world events, or to predictions of the coming of the Messiah. Those predictions are not limited to the First Coming, but also to the Second Coming of Christ.

I mentioned the order of books in the Hebrew Bible as being different from the order that we have in our Old Testament. They contain the same books as we have, just they are categorized differently. Jesus knew the order of the Hebrew Bible with the books lined up as either LAW, PROPHETS, or WRITINGS (Wisdom Literature). Jesus often referred to Moses and the Prophets (Luke 16:29-31). My point was that "prophets" wrote both history (the forthtelling element) and foretelling as we find in Isaiah especially.
